

ZEBRONICS® Launches Nvidia chipset based AM2 motherboard

Chennai Tuesday 24th July: ZEBRONICS® today announced the launch of its 1st mainstream motherboard Nvidia MCP61 based AMD socket AM2 motherboard. nVidia MCP61S IGP is a mix of north and south bridge in a single chip, based on C51 and MCP51 with some simplification. The mix offers a better price to performance.

Mr Pradeep Doshi, Director, TopNotch Infotronix, commented “The launch of this motherboard marks Zebroinc's entry into the mainstream motherboard market. Again we're targeting the value for money segment where we know the industry is still lacking. Soon more boards will follow with different configuration and performance levels. We have something in store for every segment in the motherboard market. We're just waiting for the right time.”

On the occasion Mr Nishant Goyal, (Manager Sales, South East Asia, NVIDIA) also added “This is a great move by ZEBRONICS®. They has been our oldest partner right from the day NVIDIA started their business in India, they have done really well with graphic cards and making it affordable for every walks of life to enjoy a richer computing experience.

India had the need of a more performance/price ratio. With the CPU prices falling there had to be a motherboard that would not compromise on quality and yet be affordable. We're waiting for ZEBRONICS® to come out with more motherboards, and make it affordable for people harness the performance of NVIDIA chipset boards.”

Geforce 6 is the soul of the graphic part of MCP61S also known as MCP61 - 405. It supports DirectX 9 and Shader Model 3.0. Is Windows Vista Premium ready. Standard Definition Pure Video and PCI-E are supported also. Functions of the south bridge is similar to nForce 410, with SATAII supporting RAID 0, 1, and JBOD, build-in 10/100 Ethernet, 8 USB 2 interface and 7.1 High Definition Audio.

This board will be readily available by this weekend through all ZEBRONICS® channel partners.
